TUESDAY, NOV 2, 1658. nounces the "conduct of the majority (that is, the Protestant majority controlling the schools) a glating tyranny, unworthy of our free country, unworthy of this nineteenth century." We have already answered two of the separate counts in this beavy indiction of all impartial men, that the two naked infaction of all impartial men, that the two naked infaction of all impartial men, that the two naked infaction of all impartial men, that the two naked infaction of all impartial men, that the two naked infaction of all impartial men, that the controller is that the continue to the public is that the continue to that the continue to the public is the public is that the continue to the public is the public is that the continue to the public is the facts, on which libese counts are founded, and of which so much is made—namely, the fact that the The last charge about the S vi i str Protestant Bible is read in the beating of Protestant shall answer in our new hildren, and the fact that in this free country Protestant love at school will sometimes laugh at Cath

The next of these, being the third in his order of at- will secure the country of the rangement, a stated in the following words: "We The Senate ha I wenty in mining in that our public schools, 4 Reput heave, and 1 Amining in hill over, ... astead of bai impartially administered, are now, twelve district in which elect see are controlled by better political partisans. He then and Lake and Milleure of the partisality and includes to certain cases of alleged partiality and included the partiality and have been for some years past, governed and are as follows controlled by better political parcisans. He then and Minnelly thought some instances at least, merely because they wer knowledge any way. Nor has the Bishop informed as except by this vague and indefinite allusion.

And, if he had, we should feel under no special neeasity either of vindicating what the people in the sovereignly had done at the polls in the one case, o what the school trustees, in their efficial capacity had done in the other. If the people did wrong in the premi es, we know of no redress but for the B. p to e lighten them, and make them do better bereafter. If our public efficers did wrong, there were two modes of redress; the courts were open, and he might arr ign them before the proper to huma, or, being alwa s amenable to their constituent, ther might to left out, and others put in. It is no ewithing for minorities to think themselves acved under dominant administrations. But to defend particular acts of the people or their public officers, against vague implications like these, still it is easy to vindicate our public schools from the odium which this whole statement is calculated thus c vertly referred to, without even being nam their places because of their religion. The statement is evidently i tend d to make the impression that partiality a has that is the general practice with ear school trustees. For it is added: "If one escaped the inqui iterial ordeal, probably because her religion was no. known, and another was anbecquently ared to a inferior position, it does not material Is affect the case." Now what is the real troth in the matter? We have taken the pains to inquire. Lake and we are distinctly informed by members of the board, that there are now and always have been Ca-tholic teachers in the schools; that there are and attendance w u'd entitle them to, if the matter we ettled by equal proportions. With what face ther entited by equal proportions. With what face then can this charge of partiality and persecution be paraded before an intelligent public? (tught not this to satisfy the Bishop—to have Catholic teachers proportionate to the number of Catholic pupils? These he ask more than this? Does he take the ground Protestant parents ought to profer Catholic teachers islature. The real casted I's in the following c for their children; that, in schools where one child and doubtful country, who have the the in the is mise, or one is a hundred, belongs to a Catholic tral part of the State. We are the family, the board of trustees are bound always to Counties. appoint a Cathol teacher in preference to a Pro-tostant? Well, this is high ground indeed; first, that in schools thus essatiainted no Protestant Bille shall be read; then, that no nick-mames, or free con-linearing. wersation about religion, birth, or blood, shall be allowed among the Protestant boys at play; and, last of all, that no Catholic leacher who ever applies for a place shall be retused? And, unless these three conditions are unconditionally granted, heaven and earth are to be best ged benefinth with appeals that the Calberga Reann of the forecast and the carrier and of the conditions are unconditionally granted, heaven and the carrier and carrier earth are to be feest ged bescehorth with appears about the "glaiming pleanapy of this free country" and this minesteenth century"."

But the Bishup's charge is leveled, not merely easien these allocal abuses of the system, but against the whole system intell an appearent organized in this city. Nothing, he thicks, will cure the elless than a testal change, by which the rebots hall be taken out of the hands of political demangeme and placed upon a basis where they will be an longer "liable in their management to all the samifold materies of political parties and to be constantly dranged down into the areas of angry political strife," With this is a deep question, and has doubtless often tasked the test abilities of states see as we and pare as any in the Homan Catholic Church. over, for the uninority—the very party that first threw in this apple of discord—to come forward and lecture the majority about the dreadful evil of trailing the sacred robes of education and religion in the nuire of party politics, is very much as if that uninority, not satisfied with the past, would take advantage of its own wrong to do the public a still there is very little change in the Treasury.
